² When reciting as a poem the (a) in brackets is elided with the A at the start of the next word: so this becomes ādhar'āparich This occurs about ten times.

Evam nāmnām sahasreṇa tuṣṭāva hi haram hariḥ
Prārthayāmāsa śhambhuṃ vai pūjayāmāsa paṅkajaiḥ ..133..
With this thousand names, both Shiva and Vishnu are pleased Shambhu (Shiva) fulfills the desires of one worshipping with a lotus.

Tataḥ sa kautukī śhambhuś chakāra charitaṃ dvijāḥ
Mahad-bhūtaṃ sukha-karam tad-eva śhrīṇu-tādarāt ..134..
Thus is this praise of Shambhu performed by the twice-born
Listening to this indeed makes one great and grants happiness

Iti Śhrī Śhiva Mahāpurāṇe caturthyām koṭi rudra-saṃhitāyām
Śhiva sahasra-nāma varṇanam nāma pañca-trimśo-'dhyāyaḥ ..135..
Here ends the Thousand Names of Shri Shiva from the 35th Chapter of the fourth book of the Shiva Purana.
